

Bringing your staff along the safety journey, having them understand your safety management system and ensuring they have the confidence to use your system are basic elements of successful safety management.

Safety Management Systems Training

We offer independent safety management system training services and it matters not whether the system is your own developed system, a proprietary package or our generic safety plan.

The training objective is to present your systems ease of use and get your staff confident in their use by working practical examples of core system elements.

Service description -

Our Safety Management System Training service plans, prepares and delivers training sessions to address the core system elements. The sessions result in your staff being familiar with and confident to use the system.

Service details - We liaise with you to prepare the training and timing plan. Session plans and materials are then prepared to meet objectives. We deliver training at suitable locations provided by you or at our premises with the session durations set to suit your business needs.

Sessions focus on the core system elements as they apply to your business and may include workplace establishment or set up, risk assessment, emergency plans, amenities, consultation and issue resolution, induction, safe work method statements, contractor management, inspections and all associated documentation.

We work through practical examples of risk assessment, safe work method statements and inspections and other elements as session duration permits.

How the service works -

When you contact us, we'll discuss and explore your needs and then propose a suitable training and timing plan. This will involve who training is directed at, when are suitable dates and times, what messages you want included, what type of examples are best and any other aspect you seek. Either party can arrange locations. We'll prepare materials, overheads, handouts, etc.

Depending on attendee numbers we may need more than one trainer. The sessions are two way, we involve attendees in discussions, team tasks and worked examples.
