

Knowing your workplace complies with safety requirements is a key concern for owners and managers. Having an independent unbiased opinion with attendant advice and recommendations will keep your workplace on track.

Workplace Assessment

A Workplace Assessment provides a baseline and direction for the future.

The down side of non-compliance has serious time and cost implications with scrutiny coming from regulatory authorities, neighbours, unions and other interested parties.

Service description -

Our Workplace Assessment service assesses your workplace for compliance with current OHS Acts, Regulations, Codes and guidelines culminating in a comprehensive report outlining compliance items, opportunities for improvement, suggested actions, recommendations and proposed timing.

Service details - We liaise with you and your managers and, on a suitable date, undertake a full visual inspection of your workplace. The assessment is based on current requirements of OHS Acts, Regulations, Codes and guidelines and you or a representative are invited and welcomed to accompany the assessment team during the inspection.

The assessment team inspects all areas of the workplace, subject to safe access, including external, underground and roof areas and all internal areas, rooms, kitchens, amenities, cupboards, switchboards, stairways, etc and observes workplace facilities and practices, takes photographs and asks questions of the representative and local personnel.

How the service works -

Once agreement is reached on assessment and workplace scope, we arrange suitable dates for carrying out inspections. After completion of the visual inspection and returning to our office, the assessment team compiles and prepares the Workplace Assessment report.

Required or recommended actions have proposed timing applied to progressively work through hazard types of the basis of risk. The report is then presented and discussed with you.

Fisher Jenkin Workplace Safety encourages and assists employers proactively manage workplace safety risks whilst achieving compliance with obligations and responsibilities that employers must embrace in today's business environment.
